Writing a book can be a solitary exercise, but I have been lucky enough to have worked in excellent research environments over the years. The initial research for this book was conducted at the Institute for Environmental Studies at the VU University Amsterdam. This was followed by a Marie Curie Fellowship (CLIMATEGOV – Contract no. 253090) with the Environmental Change Institute at the University of Oxford. The research was completed at the Stockholm Environment Institute in 2013. I am very grateful to the many friends and colleagues who have supported me throughout this endeavour.

I have had the privilege of testing ideas with the following people through discussions, feedback on written work or co-authorship: Dan Bodansky, Tom Brewer, Harriet Bulkeley, Heleen de Coninck, Thijs Etty, Liz Fisher, Nicolien van der Grijp, Aarti Gupta, Dave Huitema, Andrew Jordan, Norichika Kanie, Sylvia Karlsson-Vinkhuyzen, Kati Kulovesi, Andrew Long, Nele Matz-Lück, Jeff McGee, Michael Mehling, Ayşem Mert, Remi Moncel, Sebastian Oberthür, Philipp Pattberg, Jerneja Penca, Benjamin Simmons, Francesco Sindico, Johannes Stahl, Claire Stockwell, Olav Schram Stokke, Ludivine Tamiotti, Kyla Tienhaara, Antto Vihma and Christina Voigt.

I should give special credit to a few people in particular: Frank Biermann and Joyeeta Gupta, whose encouragement to complete this book has been indispensable; Fariborz Zelli, who through friendship and co-authorship has greatly inspired my thinking on regime interactions; and Constanze Haug, who has helped me through many difficult stages of the writing process.

Edward Elgar Publishing has been supportive since the very beginning, and I would like to particularly thank Matthew Pittman for his encouragement, understanding and, above all, patience.

Parts of this book builds on published work, which has been updated, adapted and largely rewritten.

Sections of Chapters 3 and 9 were published as: van Asselt, Harro (2012), 'Managing the Fragmentation of International Climate Law', in Erkki Hollo, Kati Kulovesi and Michael Mehling (eds.), Climate Change and the Law, Berlin: Springer, 329–357.

Sections of Chapter 5 are updated from: van Asselt, Harro (2011), 'Legal and Political Approaches in Interplay Management: Dealing with the Fragmentation of Global Climate Governance', in Sebastian Oberthür and Olav Schram Stokke (eds.), Managing Institutional Complexity: Regime Interplay and Global Environmental Change, Cambridge, MA: The MIT Press, 59–85.

Sections of Chapter 6 draw on: van Asselt, Harro (2007), 'From UN-ity to Diversity? The UNFCCC, the Asia–Pacific Partnership, and the Future of International Law on Climate Change', Carbon and Climate Law Review, 1(1), 17–28; van Asselt, Harro, Norichika Kanie and Masahiko Iguchi (2009), 'Japan's Position in International Climate Policy: Navigating between Kyoto and the APP', International Environmental Agreements: Politics, Law and Economics, 9(3), 319–336; and Karlsson-Vinkhuyzen, Sylvia and Harro van Asselt (2009), 'Introduction: Exploring and Explaining the Asia–Pacific Partnership on Clean Development and Climate', International Environmental Agreements: Politics, Law and Economics, 9(3), 195–211.

Chapter 7 is a shortened and updated version of: van Asselt, Harro (2012), 'Managing the Fragmentation of International Environmental Law: Forests at the Intersection of the Climate and Biodiversity Regimes', New York University Journal of International Law and Politics, 44(4), 1205–1278.

Sections of Chapter 8 have been published as: van Asselt, Harro and Thomas L. Brewer (2010), 'Addressing Competitiveness and Leakage Concerns in Climate Policy: An Analysis of Border Adjustment Measures in the US and the EU', Energy Policy, 38(1), 42–51; and Zelli, Fariborz and Harro van Asselt (2010), 'The Overlap between the UN Climate Regime and the World Trade Organization: Lessons for Post-2012 Climate Governance', in Frank Biermann, Philipp Pattberg and Fariborz Zelli (eds.), Global Climate Governance Beyond 2012: Architecture, Agency and Adaptation, Cambridge, UK: Cambridge University Press, 79–96.

Finally, sections of Chapter 10 draw on: Moncel, Remi and Harro van Asselt (2012), 'All Hands on Deck! Mobilizing Climate Change Action beyond the UNFCCC', Review of European Community and International Environmental Law, 21(3), 163–176; and Zelli, Fariborz and Harro van Asselt (2013), 'The Institutional Fragmentation of Global Environmental Governance – Causes, Consequences and Responses', Global Environmental Politics, 13(3), 1–13.
