

Acknowledgements

---

This book draws on material from a number of funded projects, which we acknowledge here. Ian was Principal Investigator for the knowledge transfer project on The Politics and Policy of Wellbeing (2011) which was supported by the Higher Education Innovation Fund of the Higher Education Funding Council of England. Ian was also Principal Investigator for (and Louise a contributor to) the seminar series on The Politics of Wellbeing (2013–15), which was funded by the Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC), grant reference ES/L001357/1. We would also like to thank Ian's co-convenors of the seminar series, Karen Scott and Charles Seaford, and the other participants in the series for many valuable insights. Ian is also Co-Investigator of the ESRC evidence programme on Community Wellbeing, which was one of three initial projects funded at the launch of the What Works Centre for Wellbeing in June 2015, grant reference ES/N003756/1. The book also draws on insights from interviews conducted by Louise as part of her ESRC-funded PhD on Quality of Life and Transport Policy (2011–14), grant reference ES/I023615/1. We would like to thank all who have participated in these projects and particularly those who gave their time to be interviewed.

We are very grateful for extremely helpful comments on the manuscript from Paul Allin, Simon Bulmer, Marleen De Smedt, Stephen George, Vasilis Leontitsis, John MackMersh, Gary Marks, Allister McGregor, Ewen McKinnon, Juliet Michaelson and Oliver Zwirner. Chapter 6 draws partly on material produced jointly with Paul Anand and we would like to thank Paul for allowing us to reproduce this material here. All remaining errors and omissions are of course the responsibility of the authors.

This book is dedicated from Ian to Gillian and from Louise to her parents Chris and Elaine.