Contributors

Mihail Arandarenko is Associate Professor of Labour Economics at the Faculty of Economics of the University of Belgrade. He is Chairman of the Board of the Foundation for the Advancement of Economics in Belgrade. He has consulted long and short term to the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), World Bank, European Agency for Reconstruction (EAR), International Labour Organization (ILO), United States Agency for International Development (USAID) and other international agencies. He has published extensively on labour markets, employment programmes, industrial relations and social policy in Serbia and the region of South East Europe.

Fred Cocozzelli is a member of the Department of Government and Politics at St. John's University in New York City. He completed his master's in international affairs at Columbia University’s School of International and Public Affairs in 1999 and his doctorate in political science at the New School for Social Research in 2007. He worked in Kosovo in 1999 and 2000 as a senior field officer in humanitarian assistance and as a consultant on the social assistance scheme.

Bob Deacon is Professor of International Social Policy at the University of Sheffield, UK. He is Director of the Globalism and Social Policy Programme (www.gaspp.org) and founding editor of the journals Critical Social Policy and Global Social Policy. He has contributed through consultancies and advisory board to the work of the UNDP, United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), ILO, World Health Organization (WHO), United Nations Department of Economic and Social Affairs (UNDESA), World Bank, European Union (EU), Council of Europe and some national governments. His most recent book is Global Social Policy and Governance, published by Sage.

Maja Gerovska Mitev is Assistant Professor at the Institute of Social Work and Social Policy, Faculty of Philosophy, Ss. Cyril and Methodius University in Skopje, Macedonia. She is also a part-time PhD student at the South East European Research Centre, a collaboration between the University of Sheffield, UK, and City College, Thessaloniki, Greece. Her research interests focus on European social policy, international organizations, and comparative social policy.
Pavle Golicin is Programme Officer of the Poverty Reduction and Economic Development Cluster at the UNDP Country Office in Belgrade, Serbia. He has previously worked at the UNDP Regional Bureau for Europe and the Commonwealth of Independent States in Bratislava, Slovakia. He completed his master’s in European political and administrative studies at the College of Europe in 2002.

Noémi Lendvai studied social policy and social work at ELTE University Budapest, before she took an MA in Political Science at Central European University. Her doctoral research at the University of Bristol looked at the impact of EU accession on social policy-making in Hungary, Croatia and Slovenia, and later as a postdoctoral Fellow, she continued to work on the role of the EU in the transformation of welfare in Central and South Eastern Europe.

Reima Ana Maglajlić Holiček has just completed her PhD at Anglia Ruskin University, Cambridge, England. She is a freelance consultant in South East Europe for various organizations, specialized in supporting cooperation of different stakeholders and participation of varied marginalized groups in research, policy development and practice that affects their lives.

Mojca Novak is Associate Professor of Sociology and Social Policy. She collaborates extensively with the School of Business and Management, Novo mesto, and with the Faculty of Social Sciences and the Faculty of Social Work at the University of Ljubljana. Her main subjects of teaching and research concern social policy and public administration management.

Luana Pop is Reader at the Faculty of Sociology and Social Work of the University of Bucharest. She has been a research fellow at the Leuven Institute for Central and Eastern European Studies, Belgium (1997) and at the Max Planck Institut fuer Gesellschaftsforschung, Cologne (2004–2005). She has worked as a consultant on several national policy projects in the field of social policy, undertaken by the Romanian government in partnership with the World Bank (WB), ILO, Department for International Development (DFID) and USAID. She has edited and co-authored a Dictionary of Social Policy (2000), while her recent publications focus on the institutionalization of social policy in transition countries.

Eșref Kenan Rašidagić is a senior assistant and PhD candidate in the Faculty of Political Science, University of Sarajevo. As a project manager for the Independent Bureau for Humanitarian Issues, he headed two big social welfare restructuring projects. He also works as a freelance... consultant for various international and local organizations, mainly in the field of effective governance, social and child protection, and human rights in general.

Katja Rihar Bajuk graduated in political sciences from the Faculty of Social Sciences at the University of Ljubljana in 2002. She continued her studies at the University of Turku and Roskilde University and has specialized in European social policy. She completed her master’s programme with the thesis ‘Reforms of the pension systems in selected Central and Eastern European countries: case studies of Hungary and Slovenia’. Since 2002 she has been working in the Ministry of Labour, Family and Social Affairs of the Republic of Slovenia and has been involved in various programmes of international co-operation.

Dimitri A. Sotiropoulos is Assistant Professor of Political Science at the Department of Political Science and Public Administration of the University of Athens. He has been Senior Research Fellow at the Hellenic Observatory of the London School of Economics and Political Science and co-ordinating editor of the Greek Review of Political Science. He edited (with Thanos Veremis) the volume Is Southeastern Europe Doomed to Instability? (London: Frank Cass, 2002). His most recent publication is the edited volume Democracy and the State in the New Southern Europe, co-edited with Richard Gunther and P. Nikiforos Diamandouros (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2006).

Paul Stubbs is a British sociologist working as a Senior Research Fellow in the Institute of Economics, Zagreb, Croatia. His main research interests include: social policy in South Eastern Europe; transnational governmentalties and policy translation; and social movements and computer-mediated communication. He is a member of the international advisory board of the journal Global Social Policy and of the editorial board of the Croatian Journal of Social Policy.

Burcu Yakut-Cakar is a researcher at the Social Policy Forum at Bogazici University, Turkey and a PhD candidate in the Department of Economics, Marmara University. She received her BA and MA from the Department of Economics at Bogazici University, Turkey, with a thesis on ‘The transformation of the Turkish welfare regime’. She has contributed to various research projects on poverty and social exclusion as well as welfare reforms in Turkey, and is currently completing her PhD on a ‘Comparative analysis of poverty and inequality in Turkey’.

Arlinda Ymeraj is employed as a Social Policy Officer with UNICEF, Albania. Her doctoral thesis, completed in February 2006, is on the topic of ‘The role of social assistance in reducing social exclusion and increasing social capital’. Between 1996 and 1997, she was Minister of Labour and Social Affairs in Albania, following four years as Director of the Department for Social Assistance in the same ministry. Her publications include a chapter on Albania in the book Civil Society and Social Care published by the European Institute of Social Services in 2003.

Siniša Zrinščak is a Croatian sociologist and Professor of Social Policy at the University of Zagreb, Croatia (Department of Social Work in the Faculty of Law). His main interests include: religious and social policy changes in post-communism; Europeanization, globalization and social policy; and civil society development. He is president of the Croatian Sociological Association, president of the International Study of Religion in Central and Eastern Europe Association, and editor-in-chief of the Croatian Journal of Social Policy. 