

Contributors

Alexander S. Alexiev is Assistant Professor in Strategy and Innovation at the Department of Management and Organisation of VU University Amsterdam, The Netherlands. He is a graduate from the PhD and research master programs of the Erasmus Research Institute of Management (ERIM). His dissertation research includes a publication in the Journal of Management Studies and he has made presentations at numerous international conferences in the field. The focus of his research is on management behaviors and organizational features that can support organizational learning, innovation and effective strategic decision making.

Nima Amiriany is conducting PhD research on organizational learning through technology acquisitions. He is especially interested in how knowledge sharing (on an employee level) takes place within acquisitions of high-tech firms and how firms can learn from their acquisitions in order to enhance innovation. With his research, he aims to contribute to the strategic management literature, and more specifically to the literature of the knowledge-based and dynamic capabilities views of the firm. He has a background in business administration with a specialization in knowledge management.

Claire E. Ashton-James is Assistant Professor in Psychology at the Rijksuniversiteit Groningen, The Netherlands. She holds a PhD in social psychology from the University of New South Wales, Australia. Before moving to the Netherlands, she taught markets and management studies at Duke University, USA, and completed a post-doctoral fellowship at the University of British Columbia, Canada. Her research interests include nonconscious social influences on thought, emotion, and behavior, power, and emotions.

Sjoerd Beugelsdijk is full Professor of International Business and Management at the University of Groningen, The Netherlands. His research interests are in the fields of international business, institutional economics and comparative economic organization theory. He received his PhD from Tilburg University (The Netherlands) in 2003, for his thesis on the relationship between culture and economic behavior. In 2004, he visited Copenhagen Business School, the European University Institute in Florence, and Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio. In 2006, he received a three-year research grant from the Netherlands Organization for Scientific Research, which allowed him to spend some time at the Center for Strategic Management and Globalisation in Copenhagen in 2007, and the IGIER research institute of Bocconi University (Milan) in 2008. His current research concentrates on three main areas: institutions and the geography of the multinational firm; culture, institutions and economic performance; and innovation, social capital and institutions.

Myriam Cloudt is Assistant Professor in Entrepreneurship and Innovation at Eindhoven University of Technology, The Netherlands. Her research interests mainly include open innovation, strategic technology alliances, mergers and acquisitions, and corporate entrepreneurship. Her work has been published in Research Policy, Business History, Business History Review, and International Studies of Management and Organization. She co-authored (with Wim Vanhaverbeke) the chapter 'Open innovation in value networks', in H. Chesbrough, W. Vanhaverbeke and J. West (eds), Open Innovation: Researching a New Paradigm (Oxford University Press, 2006).

Ard-Pieter de Man is Professor of Management Studies at VU University Amsterdam and principal consultant at Atos Consulting, The Netherlands. His research concerns alliances, networks and innovation. He is the (co-) author of about thirty articles and nine books, mainly on alliances. His interest in alliances and networks is not only academic, as he has worked as a consultant for a variety of companies and governmental institutions in Europe and the USA.

Wilfred Dolfsma is an economist and philosopher, and holds a PhD in economics from Erasmus University, Rotterdam, The Netherlands. He is Professor of Innovation at the University of Groningen, The Netherlands, and is corresponding editor for the Review of Social Economy. His research interests are innovation and technological development, media industries, consumption, and the developments in and effects of intellectual property rights (IPR). His Institutional Economics and the Formation of Preferences (Edward Elgar, 2004) won him the Gunnar Myrdal Prize. His most recent books include Media & Economics (ed. with Richard Nahuis, 2005), Knowledge Economies (Routledge, 2008) and the Companion to Social Economics (ed. with John Davis, Edward Elgar, 2008).

Anca Dranca-Iacoban studies human resource management and organizational behavior in the Faculty of Economy and Business, Groningen University, The Netherlands. She focuses, in particular, on organizational behavior. She has a bachelor's degree in organizational psychology from the University of Bucharest, Romania. With a background in a student NGO, where she focused on human resources, her research interests include leadership and the influence of power on behavior, cognition and affect.

Geert Duysters is Professor of Entrepreneurship and Innovation at Eindhoven University of Technology and Tilburg University, The Netherlands. He currently acts as the scientific director of the Brabant Center of Entrepreneurship. He also holds a professorial fellow affiliation with UNU-MERIT. He holds a PhD in economics and has worked at the University of Maastricht and the TU Eindhoven as researcher, assistant professor, associate professor and full professor. He was an alliance expert for the European Commission and the OECD. From 2000 to 2003 he was Director of the Eindhoven Centre for Innovation Studies (ECIS). He also acted as Associate Dean of the Faculty of Technology Management from 2004 to 2006. His academic research mainly concerns international business strategies, innovation strategies, corporate entrepreneurship, mergers and acquisitions, network analytical methods and strategic alliances.

Maya Fiolet has a background in economics with a specialization in management. She graduated from the VU University Amsterdam, The Netherlands, where she is currently a PhD candidate in the Department of Organization Science, in the Faculty of Social Science. Her PhD research focuses on entrepreneurship in the care for the elderly.

Yolanda Grift is Assistant Professor in Econometrics at the Utrecht University School of Economics (USE), The Netherlands. She studied econometrics at the University of Amsterdam and received her PhD in 1998 with her thesis 'Female Labour supply: the influence of taxes and social premiums'. The analysis of the time allocation between spouses in the household is still one of her research fields. Recently, she has done some research into the transition of secondary school to the university with respect to the mathematical knowledge and skills of first-year students. Since 2005 she has been involved in research on the influence of works councils on firm performance in collaboration with the members of the chair of institutional economics at USE.

Peter Groenewegen is Professor of Organization Science at the Faculty of Social Sciences and member of the Network Institute at the VU University Amsterdam, The Netherlands. His research is directed at the internal and external role of networks in modern organizations. He has published on the development and cooperation of science and technology organizations as well as on environmental policy issues. Currently he is involved in projects on the dynamics of networks in organizations, communities and crisis management. Externally his current research concerns field-level changes as a consequence of the actions of new entrants and social movements on incumbent networks.

Michael A. Hitt is Distinguished Professor of Management at Texas A&M University, USA and holds the Joe B. Foster Chair in Business Leadership. He received his PhD from the University of Colorado. He has co-authored or co-edited 26 books and authored or co-authored many journal articles. A recent article listed him as one of the ten most cited authors in management over a 25-year period. In 2010 The Times Higher Education listed him among the top scholars in economics, finance and management and first among management scholars (tied) with the highest number of highly cited articles. He has served on the editorial review boards of multiple journals and is a former editor of the Academy of Management Journal. He is the current co-editor of the Strategic Entrepreneurship Journal. He received the 1996 Award for Outstanding Academic Contributions to Competitiveness and the 1999 Award for Outstanding Intellectual Contributions to Competitiveness Research from the American Society for Competitiveness. He is a Fellow of the Academy of Management and the Strategic Management Society, a Research Fellow of the National Entrepreneurship Consortium, and he received an honorary doctorate from the Universidad Carlos III de Madrid. He is a former President of the Academy of Management, a Past President of the Strategic Management Society and a member of the Academy of Management Journal's Hall of Fame. He received awards for the best article published in the Academy of Management Executive (1999), the Academy of Management Journal (2000), and the Journal of Management (2006). In 2001, he received the Irwin Outstanding Educator Award and the Distinguished Service Award from the Academy of Management. In 2004, he was awarded the Best Paper Prize by the Strategic Management Society, and in 2006, he received the Falcone Distinguished Entrepreneurship Scholar Award from Syracuse University.

Marleen Huysman is Professor of Knowledge and Organization in the Faculty of Business Administration, VU University Amsterdam. Her research interests are related to knowledge networks, a practice-based approach to organizations, organizational learning, distributed knowledge sharing and integration, and new forms of organizing. Her research has appeared in various international articles, books and edited volumes. She currently heads the research group Knowledge, Information and Networks at the VU University Amsterdam.

Justin J.P. Jansen is Professor of Corporate Entrepreneurship at the Rotterdam School of Management, Erasmus University, The Netherlands. He received his PhD Cum Laude from Erasmus University in 2005. His research addresses leadership, organizational learning, ambidexterity, and corporate entrepreneurship and has appeared in the Academy of Management Journal, the Journal of Business Venturing, the Journal of Management Studies, Leadership Quarterly, Management Science and Organization Science.

Hsin-Hsuan Meg Lee is a PhD candidate at Amsterdam Business School, The Netherlands, and a lecturer in marketing. Her research focuses on corporate social responsibility, particularly in the field of corporate communication and consumer behaviors on social media. She holds an MSc in marketing from the University of Strathclyde, and an MSc in applied animal behaviours and animal welfare from the University of Edinburgh.

Killian J. McCarthy is an economist and strategist. He read for a PhD in the economics of corporate strategy at the University of Groningen, the Netherlands, and wrote on the topic of mergers and acquisitions. His research interests include business and industrial organization, and strategy, but he has also published on the topics of corporate tax competition, money laundering and criminal finance, as well as the influence of media power on both consumer and business sentiment. He holds a first-class Bachelor's degree in business from University College Cork, Ireland, which he earned with a double-major in economics and law, and two 'cum laude' Master's degrees in economics, from the Utrecht University School of Economics, the Netherlands, and the University of Vienna, Austria. In addition, he is currently reading a bachelor of laws at the University of London, UK.

Tiago Ratinho is currently working on his PhD thesis at Nikos, the Dutch Institute for Knowledge-Intensive Entrepreneurship. He research analyses the impact of business incubation, showing how incubation processes work, unravelling complex relationships between business support and firm performance. His research interests are in the fields of entrepreneurship, small business management, technology transfer and organizational change. He graduated in industrial engineering (Évora) and holds an MSc in engineering policy and management of technology (Lisbon). His work is published in international journals (Techovation) and international conferences (Academy of Management meetings, Babson College Research Conference on Entrepreneurship).

G.J. (Joost) Rietveld is pursuing a PhD at the London-based Cass Business School, City University, in the field of strategic management in the digital games industry. He has particular interest in the strategic implications of the advent of digital distribution channels, and the post-acquisition integration process of high rise acquisition targets. In his research, he is supervised by Professor Joseph Lampel, known for his contributions in the fields of strategic management and cultural industries. Joost holds a BSc in business with a specialization in small business and entrepreneurship and strategic management of innovations, and an MSc in strategic management of innovations, both from the University of Groningen, the Netherlands.

Saraï Sapulete is an economic PhD candidate with a sociological background. She is interested in organizational processes and studies the effects of works councils in organizations at the Utrecht University School of Economics, The Netherlands. In her past education and research at the University of Groningen (BSc in sociology, MSc in human behavior in social contexts) she has focused on social capital and social networks in organizations. She is currently studying the effect of works councils by means of different methods, including experimental economics and social network analysis.

Astrid A. ter Wiel is a PhD candidate at the Faculty of Economics and Business Administration at the VU University, Amsterdam, The Netherlands. After obtaining her MSc in industrial engineering and management at the University of Twente, she worked as a consultant – with PwC Consulting and Significant B.V. – in the Netherlands and as a manager of a developing aid project at two local universities in Kampala, Uganda. In 2008, she started her research at the VU in which she focuses on interorganizational collaboration and relationship management. She teaches in the areas of strategy, organizational behavior and procurement.

Annette van den Berg is Assistant Professor in Institutional Economics at the Utrecht University School of Economics (USE), The Netherlands. She studied economic history at Leiden University and graduated from the Economics Faculty of the University of Amsterdam with her thesis: ‘Trade union growth and decline in the Netherlands’. Her research still focuses on labor relations, with special attention to the role of workers in the corporate governance debate and the influence of works councils on firm performance.

Frans A.J. Van den Bosch is Professor of Management of Interfaces between Firms and their Environments at the Department of Strategic Management and Business Environment, RSM Erasmus University, Rotterdam, The Netherlands. His current research interests include managerial and knowledge-based theories of the firm; strategic renewal and corporate entrepreneurship; intra- and interorganizational governance structures; corporate governance and corporate responsiveness; and integrative strategy frameworks. He has published several books and papers in journals such as the Academy of Management Journal, the Journal of Business Venturing, the Journal of Management Studies, Long Range Planning, Management Science, Organization Science, Organization Studies and Business and Society. He is an editorial board member of, among others, the Journal of Management Studies, Long Range Planning and Organization Studies. He is co-director of the Erasmus Strategic Renewal Center (ESRC) and chairman of the Advisory Board of Erasmus Research Institute of Management (ERIM).

Arjen van Witteloostuijn is Research Professor of Economics and Management at the University of Antwerp in Belgium, and Professor of Institutional Economics at Tilburg University and Utrecht University, both in the Netherlands. In the 1980s, 1990s and 2000s, he was affiliated with the University of Groningen, University Maastricht (both the Netherlands) and Durham University (United Kingdom), and he visited New York University (the USA) and Warwick Business School (the UK). He holds degrees in economics, management and psychology. In 1996–98, he was Dean of the Maastricht Faculty of Economics and Business Administration. He is a (former) member of the editorial board of, for example, the Academy of Management Journal, the British Journal of Management, Industrial and Corporate Change, the Journal of International Business Studies, Organization Studies and Strategic Organization. Apart from many (chapters in) books, and articles in Dutch dailies and journals, he has published widely in a variety of disciplines, such as accounting (for example, Accounting, Organizations and Society), economics (for example, the International Journal of Industrial Organization), management (for example, the Academy of Management Journal), public administration (for example, the Journal of Public Administration Research and Theory), political science (for example, the American Journal of Political Science), psychology (for example, Personality and Individual Differences) and sociology (for example, the American Sociological Review).

Paul W.L. Vlaar obtained his MSc in economics from Wageningen University, The Netherlands, and his PhD from RSM Erasmus University (both cum laude). He is currently the Commercial Director of Aannemingsbedrijf Ooijevaar, a Dutch construction firm, and Associate Professor at the VU University, Amsterdam, The Netherlands. His research concerns interorganizational cooperation, new business development and strategic change, and has been published in MIS Quarterly, Organization Studies, Group & Organization Management, and several edited books. His first book was Contracts and Trust in Alliances: Creating, Appropriating and Discovering Value (Edward Elgar, 2008) followed by Strategy at Every Corner! Inspiration for a New Breed of Strategists (Synspire Publishing, 2010).

Henk W. Volberda is Professor of Strategic Management and Business Policy and Director Knowledge Transfer at the Rotterdam School of Management, Erasmus University, The Netherlands. He is director of the Erasmus Strategic Renewal Centre (ESR) and Fellow and Director of the Strategy Research Program of the Erasmus Research Institute of Management (ERIM). He is also Chairman of the top institute INSCOPE: Research for Innovation, board member of the Netherlands Institute for Social Innovation (NCSI), and Vice-President of the European Academy of Management (EURAM). His research on strategic flexibility and organizational renewal received many awards, including the Erasmus University Research Award 1997, the Igor Ansoff Strategic Management Award 1993, the ERIM Impact Award 2003, 2005 and 2007, the ERIM Top Article Award 2007 and the SAP Strategy Award 2005. His work on strategic renewal, coevolution of firms and industries, knowledge flows, new organizational forms and innovation has been published in journals such as the Academy of Management Journal, the Journal of Business Venturing, the Journal of Management Studies, the Journal of International Business Studies, Long Range Planning, Management Science, Organization Studies, and Organization Science.

Charles B. Weinberg is SMEV Presidents Professor and Chair of Marketing at the Sauder School of Business, University of British Columbia, Vancouver, Canada. His research interests include marketing management in public and nonprofit organizations, services management and marketing, and the development and application of marketing models and analytical techniques to a broad range of business and non-business settings. Recent published work has focused on competitive dynamics and timing strategies (with particular application to the arts and entertainment industries), the marketing of safer sex, and competition among nonprofit organizations. He is a former editor of Marketing Letter and former area editor of Marketing Science.

Raymond O.S. Zaal has been a PhD researcher at Nyenrode University, The Netherlands since 2009. He holds a Bachelor's degree in engineering and two Master's degrees in business administration, from Erasmus University, Rotterdam and the University of Rochester (USA). He is a senior lecturer and developer in several educational programs at Inholland University for Applied Sciences and works as a management consultant. He is currently working on a PhD thesis on integrity management. His research is on the banking and real estate sectors in The Netherlands, focusing on the relationship between organizational aspects and ethical behavior, specifically the effectiveness of performance measurement and reward systems and ethical cultural practices as organizational instruments to reinforce ethical behavior.

