This book is dedicated to the heterodox movement in economics. Most of the chapters were earlier versions of papers presented to various Society of Heterodox Economists (SHE) conferences. Chapter 1 is based on research undertaken as part of a fellowship for the Sraffa Centre at the University of Rome 3 in May/June 2006. I would like to acknowledge my gratitude to Professor Garegnani for his critical comments and the assistance of Professors Stirati and Ciccone in the presentation of an earlier draft at the Centro Sraffa. I should also like to express my gratitude to the Political Economy School of the University of Sydney where I spent six months study leave to complete this book. I should also mention my colleague at the University of Western Sydney, Dr Neil Hart, and Associate Professor Peter Kriesler of the University of New South Wales for their critical comments and support.

A shorter version of Chapters 6 and 7 was published as 'The United States empire of debt: the roots of the current financial crisis' in 2008 in the Journal of Australian Political Economy, Vol. 62. Chapters 1 and 2 were the basis for an abridged version published as 'A Marxian theory of money, credit and crisis' in Capital & Class, Vol. 100 in 2010. Sections of the Introduction appeared as 'The demise of neo-liberalism?' in Real World Economics Review, Vol. 51 in 2009.
