Contributors

Elena Akdanova graduated from the Hague University of Applied Sciences. She has a Bachelor degree in European Studies and a Major in Sustainable Development. She was Research Assistant at Enviu, Rotterdam, where she studied sustainability attitudes of globally active Non-Governmental Organizations.

Margarete van den Brink is a Dutch Communication Consultant, coach and trainer and writer of books on leadership and spirituality. Her books are published in Dutch, German, English and Spanish. She works internationally and gives workshops on various aspects of leadership based on a 7-phases model on individual and organizational growth which she has developed and tested over the past few decades (www.margaretevandenbrink.nl). She has studied Social Sciences.

Johan Graafland studied Economics at Erasmus University Rotterdam and Theology at Utrecht University. He is full time professor in ‘Economics, business and ethics’ at Tilburg School of Economics and Management at Tilburg University. He is a Fellow of Tilburg Sustainability Center and of the European Banking Center. He is specialized in (amongst others) corporate social responsibility, Christian ethics, and the relation between religiosity and economics and business.

Jules Hinssen graduated in History and Political Science at Radboud University Nijmegen. He worked with the Dutch Ministry of Agriculture and Nature Management in The Hague and was Manager of City Development at the municipality of Venlo. His recent activities at Telos, Tilburg University focused on research and facilitation of regional sustainable development initiatives. He is specialized in policy network dynamics and leadership for sustainability.

Wouter Kersten is Research and Innovation Manager at Enviu, Rotterdam, a Dutch non-profit organization that starts up sustainable business companies. He was involved in various projects at Telos and Globus, research institutes at Tilburg University, and has written various articles on sustainable innovation and entrepreneurship. He holds two Masters, one from the University of Twente, the Netherlands and one from the University of Greenwich, UK.
Mattijs van Maasakkers is a PhD Candidate in the Department of Urban Studies and Planning at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he is the Assistant Director of the MIT Science Impact Collaborative. His research is supported through TNO, the Netherlands Organisation for Applied Scientific Research.

Peter Merry (BA, MSc) is Founder and Chair of the Center for Human Emergence (the Netherlands), Director of the Hague Center for Global Governance, Innovation and Emergence and Founding Partner of Engage! He specialized in the field of evolutionary systems dynamics and is researching the application of noetic science and quantum physics to whole systems transitions. He is author of the book Evolutionary Leadership (2010).

Hans Mommaas is Director of Telos, Brabant Center for Sustainable Development and Professor of Leisure Studies at Tilburg University. In addition he is an Endowed Professor in Urban Dynamics and Culture at Utrecht University and Guest Professor in Cultural Management at Antwerp University. He was Scientific Director of the Dutch innovative research program for Agro & Green Space ‘Transforum’ and initiates projects for new Markets for Leisure and Regional Development. He has published (among others) on urban and regional development, sustainability and leisure, tourism and culture.

Otto Scharmer is a Senior Lecturer at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) and the founding chair of the Presencing Institute and the MIT IDEAS program. He is a core faculty member of the UN Global Leaders Program. Dr Scharmer helps leaders from government, business, NGOs, and international organizations to transform their institutions from egosystem to ecosystem awareness in order to pioneer a more sustainable world. He introduced (www.presencing.com) the concept of presencing – learning from the emerging future – in his books Theory U and Presence (the latter co-authored with P. Senge, J. Jaworski, and B.S. Flowers), which have been translated into more than ten languages.

Lisette Schuitemaker (MA, BSc) is an entrepreneur and social investor serving on the Boards of various foundations in the field of pioneering practices for a resilient future, such as the Findhorn Foundation in Scotland and the Center for Human Emergence (the Netherlands). She is also a founding member of the Prior Unity Academy in Wilderswil, Switzerland. Her book The 5 Child-conclusions (in Dutch) on mental behavioral frames was published in 2011.
Paul van Seters studied Law at Utrecht University and Sociology at the University of California, Berkeley. Currently he is Director of Globus and Professor of Globalization and Sustainable Development at TiasNimbas Business School at Tilburg University, the Netherlands. Previously he was Professor of Legal Sociology in the Faculty of Law at Tilburg University. He has published widely on socio-legal theory, public administration, and cultural sociology. His research interests include law and communitarianism, corporate social responsibility, and the global civil society.

Hugo Smid studied Economics and Philosophy at Tilburg University. He graduated in economics with a Master’s thesis on corporate social responsibility (CSR), reputation and the market mechanism. He received his MA in philosophy with a Master’s thesis on social philosophy. His PhD research focuses on the responsibility of companies in the European Union and is part of a project from the European Commission.

Lawrence Susskind is Ford Professor of Urban and Environmental Planning at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology where he heads the MIT Science Impact Collaborative (scienceimpact.mit.edu). He is also founder and chief knowledge officer at the Consensus Building Institute, a not-for-profit provider of dispute resolution services around the world, as well as one of the founders and Vice-Chair for Education at the Program on Negotiation at Harvard Law School.

Jaco Tavenier is a Lawyer and High Level Official. He has over 25 years of working experience both at Dutch governmental departments and the United Nations. He works presently at the Dutch Ministry of Infrastructure and Environment, the Hague, and was as Programme Officer with the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP Regional Office for Europe, Geneva), responsible for the conceptualization, development, management and implementation of partnership activities. In 2012 he published the book Will the UN Save Us? (In Dutch).

Anne-Marie Voorhoeve (MA) is Strategic Connector of the Center for Human Emergence (the Netherlands), Co-founder of the Hague Center for Global Governance, Innovation and Emergence, and expert in Meshworking: initiating and leading complex multi-stakeholder projects. Her co-creative work includes training of large scale collaboration processes. She has a background in entrepreneurship, experience marketing and communications.

Lieke van de Voort studied International Economics and Finance at the State University of New York, Albany and Tilburg University and was Research Assistant at Telos, Tilburg University. She was a Management Trainee at Fortis Bank which merged later into ABN AMRO Bank, Amsterdam, where she is Customer Excellence Expert striving for excellence in customer service and operational value.

Kees Zoeteman is Professor of Sustainable Development in International Perspective at Tilburg University. He served as Deputy Director-General at the Dutch Ministry of the Environment, The Hague, chaired the Board of the European Environment Agency in Copenhagen, and was Member of the China Council on Environment and Development in Beijing. He holds a PhD in Social Sciences from Utrecht University and studied Chemistry at Delft University. He chairs the Dutch Advisory Commission on Genetic Modification (www.cogem.net). He has consulted with (among others) governments, OECD, WHO and international companies.