Figures

1.1 The three dimensions of the cultural commons 7
1.2 The cultural change game 13
1.3 Equilibria in the case of the appearance of mimickers of cultural trait \( x \) 16
2.1 IAD framework 21
2.2 Types of economic goods 24
3.1 Effect of the introduction of an arbitrarily small probability of interaction between agents with no traits in common in a 1D version of Axelrod’s social influence model 38
3.2 Example of memotype–environment correspondence in the Base and Group models 42
3.3 Average number of niches per environment length for a memotype of length \( m = 6 \) 44
3.4 Agents in each memotype in typical runs of the Base and Group models 46
3.5 Agents in each memotype in typical runs of the NC-base and NC-group models 49
4.1 Cumbria and the Lake District, with principal urban settlements 62
4.2 J.M.W. Turner, Buttermere Lake, with Part of Cromackwater, Cumberland, a Shower (1798) 65
4.3 John Constable, View in Borrowdale (1806) 65
4.4 Some structural elements of the Lake District’s cultural economy 68
4.5 A characteristic page from a Wainwright guidebook 73
4.6 A literary map of the Lake District and its environs 75
5.1 A model to describe ethnic cultural districts 92
6.1 Internal network 114
6.2 External network (with macro categories) 115
6.3 Historic pattern of the Milan designers’ community 118
6.4 Milanese design in the 1950s to mid-1960s 121
6.5 Milanese design in the 1970s and 1980s 123
7.1 Anatomy of French gastronomic districts 137
8.1 Tourism development at a heritage site 161