Contributors

ABOUT THE EDITORS

Jan Wouters is Jean Monnet Chair ad personam, full professor of international law and international organizations and director of the Leuven Centre for Global Governance Studies and the Institute for International Law at the University of Leuven (KU Leuven). He is also visiting professor at the College of Europe (Bruges, Belgium), Sciences Po (Paris, France) and Luiss University (Rome, Italy), where he teaches European Union external relations law. Professor Wouters has published widely on international and European law and global governance, including around 50 books, 100 international journal articles and 150 chapters in international books with major international publishers.

Antoon Braeckman is full professor in contemporary political philosophy and co-ordinator of the Centre for Ethics, Social and Political Philosophy at the Institute of Philosophy of the University of Leuven (KU Leuven). He is a senior member of the Leuven Centre for Global Governance Studies.

Matthias Lievens is a postdoctoral researcher at the Centre for Ethics, Social and Political Philosophy of the University of Leuven (KU Leuven) and a lecturer in legal philosophy at Tilburg Law School, Tilburg University (Netherlands). He studied political science, philosophy, anthropology and history, and defended a PhD in philosophy entitled ‘Spectres of the Political: Uncovering the Metapolitical in Carl Schmitt’ at KU Leuven. He has published in journals such as Constellations, Contemporary Political Theory and Philosophy and Social Criticism.

Emilie Bécault is a research manager at the Leuven Centre for Global Governance Studies of the University of Leuven (KU Leuven) in Belgium. She holds an MA in International Relations from the University of Chicago (USA) and an MA in Political Science from Ohio State University (USA).
ABOUT THE CONTRIBUTORS

Stephanie Bijlmakers is a doctoral researcher at the Leuven Centre for Global Governance Studies of the University of Leuven (KU Leuven). She has an interdisciplinary background in social sciences and an LLM in Law and Language Studies from Maastricht University (Netherlands). Throughout her studies, she has specialized in human rights and international law.

Colleen Carroll is a doctoral researcher at the Leuven Centre for Global Governance Studies of the University of Leuven (KU Leuven). She studied at Marquette University, University of Chicago (USA), and Universidad Católica San Antonio de Murcia (Spain), and worked for two years as an economic consultant.

Kenneth Chan is a doctoral researcher at the Leuven Centre for Global Governance of the University of Leuven (KU Leuven). He has a background in law, receiving an LLB (Hons) from the University of Auckland (New Zealand) in 2009, and read for his LLM (Adv) in Public International Law from the University of Leiden (Netherlands) in 2010, where he specialized in international criminal law.

Christophe Crombez is professor of political economy at the Faculty of Business and Economics and senior member of the Leuven Centre for Global Governance Studies of the University of Leuven (KU Leuven). He is also a W. Glenn Campbell and Rita Ricardo-Campbell National Fellow, Hoover Institution, Stanford (USA), and a visiting professor of European political economy at the Freeman Spogli Institute for International Studies, Stanford University (USA).

Haye Hazenberg is a Research Foundation – Flanders (FWO) doctoral researcher at the Leuven Centre for Global Governance Studies and the Institute of Philosophy of the University of Leuven (KU Leuven). He has a BA in liberal arts and sciences from University College Utrecht (Netherlands) and an MSc Political Theory from the London School of Economics (UK).

Tim Heysse is associate professor of political philosophy and a senior member of the Leuven Centre for Global Governance Studies of the University of Leuven (KU Leuven).

Alessandro Mulieri is a postdoctoral researcher at the Leuven Centre for Global Governance Studies and the Institute of Philosophy of the University of Leuven (KU Leuven). He has a BA and MA in Political Philosophy and Political Science from the University of Rome ‘La Sapienza’.
Sapienza’ (Italy) and an MSc in Politics and Government in the European Union from the London School of Economics (UK). In December 2014 he defended his PhD on ‘Political Representation: A Historical and Conceptual Investigation into its Polisemy’ at KU Leuven.

Geert Van Calster is professor of private international law and international and European environmental law, head of the department of international and European law and a senior member at the Leuven Centre for Global Governance Studies of the University of Leuven (KU Leuven). He is also visiting professor at Monash University in Melbourne (Australia) and at the China–EU School of Law in Beijing (China), and a visiting lecturer at King’s College, London (UK).

Sven Van Kerckhoven is a doctoral researcher at the Leuven Centre for Global Governance Studies of the University of Leuven (KU Leuven). He holds a BA and MA in Business Economics and an MA in International Politics and Relations from KU Leuven.

Thomas G. Weiss is presidential professor of political science at the City University of New York’s Graduate Center (USA) and was until 2014 director of the Ralph Bunche Institute for International Studies. He was editor of Global Governance, research director of the International Commission on Intervention and State Sovereignty, research professor at Brown University’s Watson Institute for International Studies (USA), and executive director of the Academic Council on the United Nations System and of the International Peace Academy. He is sole author of ten books, co-author or editor of more than 40 books, and has published more than 225 articles and book chapters.