

---

Tables

---

2.1	Percentage of programs that have culminating experiences as part of their undergraduate curricula	22
5.1	Example e-tivity	55
9.1	Action verbs corresponding with Bloom's Revised Taxonomy	99
9.2	Sample rubric	105
9.3	Example student learning outcome data inserted on reporting sheet	107
9.4	Met/not met	107
9.5	Total score	107
9.6	Average score	108
9.7	Three multiple choice and one true/false give outcome no. 1	108
13.1	Graduate skills sought by UK employers (in %)	147
14A.1	Grading rubric	170
14A.2	Teaching assistant rubric—total across all 5 categories = 75	171
14A.3	Peer (student) rubric—total across all 5 categories = 25	172
18.1	Substance of courses across degree levels	214
18.2	Journal articles (single and co-authored) by current and recent doctoral students	216
19.1	Ten recommendations for successful undergraduate methods teaching	222
27.1	A non-random sampling of some recently published simulations	318
30.1	Eight principles of good practice – an example (professor: Elizabeth Bennion, Indiana University South Bend; courses: American Politics, Elections and Voting Behavior)	358
30.2	Categorization of experiential learning activities	359
30.3	Definitions of experiential learning activities	360
32.1	Issues and choices in undergraduate research programs	386
32.2	Strategies for support of undergraduate research	395
33.1	Films and IR	402