Contributors

Bruno Amable is Professor of Economics at the University of Paris I Panthéon-Sorbonne and a member of the Institut Universitaire de France. He is co-editor of the Socio-Economic Review. His research focuses on the political economy of institutional change and the transformation of the different models of capitalism. He is author of The Diversity of Modern Capitalism (2003) and co-author of L’économie politique du néolibéralisme: le cas de la France et de l’Italie.

Robert Boyer is an economist at the Institute of the Americas after a career as a researcher at the National Centre for Scientific Research (CNRS) and Professor at the School for Advanced Studies in the Social Sciences (EHESS) in Paris. Starting from macroeconomic modelling for the Ministry of Finance he has been part of the Régulation Theory research programme. He has studied the long-term evolution of capitalism and its contemporary diversity, according to a renewed political economy. He is the co-editor of Diversity and transformations of Asian Capitalisms (2011, with Hiroyasu Uemura and Akinori Isogai) and Regulation Theory: The State of Art (2001, with Yves Saillards) among numerous other publications.

Luiz Carlos Bresser-Pereira is Emeritus Professor of the Getulio Vargas Foundation where he has taught and researched since 1959. His PhD and Livre Docencia in economics are from the University of São Paulo. He holds an honorary doctorate from the University of Buenos Aires, and was the 2012 James Street Scholar from the Association for Evolutionary Economics (AFEE). He was Finance Minister (1987) and Minister of Federal Administration (1995–98) of Brazil. His books in English include Democracy and Public Management Reform (2004), Developing Brazil (2009) and Globalization and Competition (2010).

Nanako Fujita is Associate Professor at the Graduate School of Economics, Nagoya City University. She is the author of Gunnar Myrdal’s Economic Thought: From Welfare State to Welfare World (2010, in Japanese), which won the 2011 Award from the Japanese Society for History of Economic Thought (JSHET). She has written articles and chapters on the history of economic thought and institutional economics, which include ‘Myrdal’s

Koji Fukuda is Professor of International Public Administration at the School of Political Science and Economics, Waseda University. He is also Director of the Waseda Institute for European Union Studies and President of the Japan Society for Public Interest and Common Good Studies. He received a PhD in political science from Doshisha University. He served as Research Fellow at the College of Europe in Brugge (1992–93), before his current affiliation. He co-edited European Governance after Nice (2003, with Hiroya Akiba).

Masanobu Ido is Professor of Political Science at Waseda University. He has published books and articles widely in the field of comparative political economy, with special emphasis on contemporary Japan. He is the editor of Varieties of Capitalism, Types of Democracy and Globalization (2012).

Hyug Baeg Im is Professor at the Department of Political Science and International Relations, Korea University. He is Visiting Professor at Johns Hopkins University, School of Advanced International Studies and on the Executive Committee at the Independent Parliamentary Standards Authority (IPSA). He received a BA in political science from Seoul National University, and an MA and PhD in Political Science from the University of Chicago. He was Visiting Professor at Georgetown University (1995–96), Duke University (1997), Stanford University (2002–03) and Visiting Fellow at the International Forum for Democratic Studies, National Endowment for Democracy, Washington, DC (1995–96).

Hideko Magara is Professor of Political Science at Waseda University. Her research focuses on the mutual impacts between party politics and economic policies in capitalist democracies. She is the author of various books and articles, including Democracy and Accountability: Globalized Political Responsibility (2010, in Japanese). She co-edited The Politics of Structural Reforms: Social and Industrial Policy Change in Italy and Japan (2013, with S. Sacchi). She is an associate member of the Science Council of Japan and former President of the Japan Association for Comparative Politics.

Alberto Martinelli is Professor Emeritus of Political Science and Sociology and former Dean of the Faculty of Social and Political Sciences at the University of Milan; Vice-President for Scientific Planning and Review, International Social Science Council; Vice-President of Science for Peace; and former President of the International Sociological Association. His research interests focus on nationalism and the European Union, the Hiroshi Nishi is Associate Professor of Economics at Hannan University. He has published articles in the field of macroeconomics and applied time series analysis. His research interests include post-Keynesian economics, institutional economics and the Japanese economy, which include ‘A Dynamic Analysis of Debt-led and Debt-burdened Growth Regimes with Minskian Financial Structure’, Metroeconomica, 63 (4), 2012.

Stefano Palombarini is Associate Professor of Economics at the University of Paris 8 Saint-Denis. His research focuses on economic policy, political regimes and the political economy of institutional change. He is author of La rupture du compromis social italien (2001) and co-author of L’économie politique du néo-libéralisme: le cas de la France et de l’Italie.

Adam Przeworski is Carroll and Milton Petrie Professor of European Studies at New York University. He is the editor of Cambridge Studies in the Theory of Democracy and co-author of the ‘ACLP data set’ (with A.M. Alvarez, J.A. Cheibub and F. Limongi). His research focuses on theory of democracy and political economy. He has been awarded the Johan Skytte Prize in Political Science for his scholarship examining the interplay among democracy, capitalism and economic development. His most recent book is Democracy and the Limits of Self-government (2010).

Stefano Sacchi is Assistant Professor of Political Science at the University of Milan and an Affiliate of the Collegio Carlo Alberto of Turin, where he coordinates the Master’s in Public Policy and Social Change (MAPS). His recent scholarship has focused on labour market and social protection reforms in advanced economies. His most recent books are The Political Economy of Work Security and Flexibility (2012, co-authored with F. Berton and M. Richiardi) and The Politics of Structural Reforms (2013, co-edited with H. Magara).

Hiroshi Shiratori is Professor of Political Science and International Relations at the Graduate School of Public Policy, Hosei University. He also serves as Director of the Institute of Policy Science, Hosei University. He was Research Fellow of the Research Council of Norway (Norges forskningsråd) at the Institute of Political Science, University of Oslo (1994–95) and Gast Professor at the Mannheim Centre for the European Social Economic crises and policy regimes

Toshio Yamada is Emeritus Professor at Nagoya University, having previously served as Professor of Economic Theories at Osaka City University and Nagoya University. He is a contributor to regulation theory. His works in English include Japanese Capitalism in Crisis (2000, co-edited with R. Boyer) and ‘How has the Japanese mode of regulation changed?’ (co-authored with Y. Hirano) in Diversity and Transformations of Asian Capitalisms (2012, edited by Robert Boyer, Hiroyasu Uemura and Akinori Isogai).

Yuki Yanai is a PhD candidate in the Department of Political Science at the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA); an adjunct researcher at Waseda University; and a lecturer at Takushoku University. His dissertation focuses on the political economy of inequality and redistribution in advanced democracies. He also works on projects regarding the production of law under strong bicameralism, the effects of economic crises on voting behaviour and the relationship between external threats and domestic elections.