Contributors

Heli Askola is a Senior Lecturer at the Faculty of Law, Monash University, Australia. Her main areas of research interest are EU law, human rights and criminal justice and her work often focuses on the rights of migrants and immigrants. She is the author of a number of publications, including Legal Responses to Trafficking in Women for Sexual Exploitation in the European Union (2007). She has done consulting work for the International Organization for Migration, the European Commission and the European Parliament and held visiting research and teaching posts at several law schools around the world.

Natalia Chaban is an Associate Professor and Jean Monnet Chair at the National Centre for Research on Europe, University of Canterbury, New Zealand. She is a Co-Head of the Department of Global, Cultural and Language Studies, leading European and EU Studies at the University of Canterbury. Since 2002 she has co-led a comparative transnational project on EU external perceptions comprising a multicultural team from 20 Asia-Pacific locations, as well as a ‘mirror’ perceptions project, ‘Asia in the Eyes of Europe’. Among her publications are: The European Union and the Asia-Pacific: Media, Public and Elite Perceptions of the EU (with M. Holland, 2008) and Communicating Europe in Times of Crisis: External Perceptions of the European Union (with M. Holland, 2014). She has also published articles in journals such as the European Foreign Affairs Review, the Journal of Common Market Studies, the Journal of European Integration, the European Law Journal and Mobilities.

Youri Devuyst is affiliated with the Institute for European Studies at the Vrije Universiteit Brussel (VUB), Belgium, where he has been teaching politics and institutions of the European Union since 1994. Between 2002 and 2011, he taught EU trade policy at the University of Bern’s World Trade Institute, Switzerland. He has served in the Cabinet (private office) of three Belgian Ministers for Foreign Affairs and of the European Commissioner for Competition Policy. He holds a Ph.D. in Political Science (VUB).

Janine Goetschy is a Senior Research Fellow at the Centre nationale de la recherche scientifique (CNRS), France, and has taught ‘EU Social Policy’ at the Institute for European Studies, Université libre de Bruxelles, Belgium for many years. As a political scientist and sociologist, she has worked on comparative industrial relations and on EU-level social, economic and institutional matters, and is the author of about a hundred publications. She sits on various editorial boards of international scientific journals.

Martin Holland is a Professor at the University of Canterbury and Director of the National Centre for Research on Europe. He holds a Jean Monnet Chair ad personam. He has published The European Union and the Asia-Pacific: Media, Public and Elite Perceptions of the EU (with Natalia Chaban, 2008) and Communicating Europe in Times of Crisis: External Perceptions of the European Union (with Natalia Chaban, 2014).

Malgorzata Klatt (Gosia) is a Lecturer at the University of Melbourne, where she teaches in the Master of Education Policy (International) and the Master of Teaching. Her research interests include post-communist transformations, Europeanization, intergovernmental relations and education policy in Australia and Europe. She is the author of Europeanization and Poland 2004–2010 (2012) and co-author (with Tomasz Stepniewski) of Normative Influence: The European Union, Eastern Europe and Russia (2012). Her latest publications include a book entitled The Poles and Australia (2014).

Nicolas Levrat is Full Professor at the Faculty of Law of the University of Geneva (since 2001), specializing in European/EU law and legal orders. At this university, he was Director of the European Institute (2007–2013), which he transformed into the Global Studies Institute, with now more than 1,000 students enrolled. He has authored and contributed to a large number of works in both French and English, most recently: La construction européenne est-elle démocratique? (2012) and ‘Legal Studies and Global Governance’, in Globalisation, Multilateralism, Europe. Towards a Better Global Governance? (2013).

Alfonso Martínez Arranz is a Researcher at Monash University where he recently obtained a Ph.D. for his thesis on the promotion of low-carbon technologies in the European Union. His current interests lie in environmental policy, energy policy and climate policy with a special focus on Europe and China. He has obtained numerous competitive scholarships and grants in Spain, Australia and China.

David Mayes is Professor of Banking and Financial Institutions and Director of the New Zealand Governance Centre at the University of Auckland, New Zealand. He was previously Director of the Europe Institute at the University. He came to Auckland after a period as Adviser to the Board at the Bank of Finland and Professor of Economics at London South Bank University. He is a former Chief Manager (now known as Assistant Governor) at the Reserve Bank of New Zealand and Director of the NZ Institute of Economic Research. He is an editor of the Economic Journal.

Milenko Petrovic is Senior Lecturer at the National Centre for Research on Europe and at the Department of Global, Cultural and Language Studies, University of Canterbury, New Zealand. He lectures and does research on twentieth century Eastern European history and politics, Europe’s economic development, integration and post-communist transition, and the EU’s eastern enlargement. He is the author of the recently published book The Democratic Transition of Post-Communist Europe (2013) and numerous journal articles and shorter contributions on comparative politics and political economy, post-communist transition and EU enlargement.

Christilla Roederer-Rynning is an Associate Professor in comparative politics at the University of Southern Denmark. She received her Ph.D. in International Studies from the University of South Carolina. She has conducted research on the Europeanization of protest, EU policy-making, and the parliamentarization of EU politics and has received funding from the National Science Foundation in the US (NSF) and the Danish Social Science Research Council (FSE). Her research is published in top international journals, including Regulation and Governance, the Journal of Common Market Studies, the Journal of European Public Policy, West European Politics and Public Administration.

Katrina Stats is a Ph.D. candidate at the School of History and Politics at the University of Adelaide. She was the Australian researcher on an international project exploring the external image of the European Union coordinated by the National Centre for Research on Europe at the University of Canterbury, New Zealand. She completed a Masters on Australian perceptions of the EU at the University of Melbourne. Her current work compares refugee and asylum policy development in Australia and the European Union.
Lai Suet-Yi (Cher) is currently a Post-doctoral Fellow in the Department of International Relations, Tsinghua University, China, researching and teaching China-EU relations, after several postings in Europe, Australia, and China. She holds a Ph.D. from the University of Canterbury. Her Ph.D. thesis focused on the contribution of the Asia Europe Meeting (ASEM) to Asia-Europe relations, regionalism and inter-regionalism. Since 2006, she has collaborated as a researcher in ‘The EU in the Eyes of Asia’ and ‘Asia Through the Eyes of Europe’ trans-national research projects, and published numerous academic journal articles and book chapters on the external image of the EU, Asia-Europe relations, China-Europe relations and ASEM.

Evan Thompson has recently been awarded the degree of Doctor of Philosophy at Monash University. His Ph.D. thesis looks at the role of Russian hydrocarbon production (including expected future production) in the Arctic, examined from the context of the resurgent Russian state and explores the implications that this has for EU energy security. Evan’s work has been supported through Australian and European scholarships.

Gudrun Wacker is a Senior Research Fellow in the Research Division Asia at the German Institute for International and Security Affairs (Stiftung Wissenschaft und Politik, SWP) in Berlin, a think tank providing political advice to the German government and parliament. Her research focuses on Chinese foreign and security policy, especially EU-China relations, Sino-Russian and Sino-Central Asian relations, China and the Asia-Pacific region and security arrangements in the Asia-Pacific. She has published on these issues as well as on China’s regional and global role and on domestic developments such as minority policy and Internet censorship in China. In 2014, she became a member of the steering committee of the Council for Security Cooperation in the Asia-Pacific.

Pascaline Winand is a Professor at Monash University and at the Institute for European Studies of the Université libre de Bruxelles (ULB) in Belgium. She has published widely on the European Union and its external relations. She holds a Ph.D. in political science (ULB). She was Professor of Contemporary History at the European University Institute in Florence, Italy (2003–2007), and was a visiting professor in universities in Ukraine, Russia, Peru and the United States. In 2009, Pascaline Winand was awarded a Jean Monnet Chair in European Integration and International Relations. Her current research interests are comparative regionalism, including in the Asia-Pacific region, US-EU-NATO relations, EU-India relations and EU-ASEAN relations.
Normann Witzleb is an Associate Professor at the Faculty of Law, Monash University. His research focus is on Australian and European private law, in particular the area of privacy rights and remedies. Prior to joining Monash University in 2008, he worked at the University of Western Australia (2001–2007) and the European University Viadrina Frankfurt (Oder) (1996–2000), where he also obtained his Ph.D. Among his publications are Auf dem Wege zu einem Europäischen Zivilgesetzbuch [Towards a European Civil Code] (co-edited, 1999) and Emerging Challenges in Privacy Law: Comparative Perspectives (co-edited, 2014).