Contributors

George G. Brenkert, PhD, is Professor Emeritus of Business Ethics at the McDonough School of Business at Georgetown University. He is former President of the Society for Business Ethics, past Editor-in-Chief of Business Ethics Quarterly, and co-founder of the Capital Area Business Ethics Network, an association of ethics officers from profit, non-profit and government organizations in the Washington, DC area. Among his publications are Marketing Ethics (Blackwell), The Oxford Handbook of Business Ethics (Oxford), and Corporate Integrity and Accountability (SAGE). He has published numerous articles pertaining to business ethics and corporate social responsibility. He is a co-founder of the TransAtlantic Business Ethics Conference.

Johannes Brinkmann holds a PhD in sociology and is a Professor of Business Ethics at the Norwegian Business School (BI). Beyond textbooks and essays written in Norwegian most of his articles are published in outlets such as the Journal of Business Ethics, the Journal of Business Ethics Education, Business Ethics: A European Review and the Electronic Journal of Business Ethics and Organization Studies. His main research interests are within descriptive consumer and marketing ethics, insurance customer and insurance business ethics, and within interdisciplinary risk research.

Wesley Cragg is a York University Professor Emeritus and Senior Scholar in Philosophy at the Schulich School of Business. He has written and edited a number of books including: five editions of Contemporary Moral Issues; Ethics Codes, Corporations and the Challenge of Globalization, 2005; Corporate Social Responsibility, 2009; and Business and Human Rights, 2013. He has published widely on a variety of business ethics themes including corporate governance, corporate codes of ethics, corporate social responsibility, sustainability, environmental ethics and business and human rights. A recent research theme is the ethics of resource extraction mining, with a particular focus on Aboriginal rights, and economic development in the Canadian North.

Georges Enderle is the John T. Ryan Jr. Professor of International Business Ethics at the Mendoza College of Business, University of Notre Knut J. Ims and former President of the International Society of Business, Economics, and Ethics (ISBEE; 2001–2004). He is a Guest Member of the Business Ethics Innovation Group at the Shanghai Academy of Social Sciences. Educated in Philosophy (Munich), Theology (Lyon), Economics (Fribourg), and Business Ethics (St. Gallen), he has extensive research and teaching experiences in Europe (1983–1992), the United States (since 1992), and China (since 1994). He serves on the Board of Advisors of several academic journals and Centers for Business Ethics in various countries and has authored and edited 18 books and over 140 articles. He conducts research on the ethics of globalization, wealth creation, business and human rights, corporate responsibilities of large and small companies, with a view on developments in China. His website is www.nd.edu/~genderle.

Kevin T. Jackson, J.D., PhD, holds the Daniel Janssen Chair in Corporate Social Responsibility at Solvay Brussels School of Economics and Management, Université Libre de Bruxelles (ULB). He is Professor of Law and Ethics at Fordham University in New York City. Author of several books and many scholarly articles, he has been on the faculties of Princeton University, Georgetown University, Peking University in Beijing, China, and École des Ponts in Paris. Jackson’s book, Charting Global Responsibilities: Legal Philosophy and Human Rights (University Press of America) was presented to His Holiness the Dalai Lama by the US State Department as a gift.

Ove Jakobsen is Professor in Ecological Economics at Bodø Graduate School of Business (HHB), University of Nordland. He is co-founder and leader of the Centre for Ecological Economics and Ethics at HHB. He is a member of the National Committee for Research Ethics in the Social Sciences and the Humanities (NESH). In addition to holding a PhD in economics from the Norwegian School of Economics, he holds three master degrees; in philosophy, marketing, and administration and leadership. In 2000, Jacobsen received the SAS and the Norwegian Economics Association prize for the best integration of environmental and societal responsibility in lectures at Norwegian Business Schools. His major research interests are ecological economics/circulation economics, business ethics/CSR, holistic science and development based on sustainability. He has published a number of scientific articles and books both nationally and internationally.

Josep M. Lozano is Professor and URL Associate Professor at ESADE Ramon Llull University. He has published five papers and seven books. Among his books, Danone en Ultzama won the MSD Award for Business Ethics Research in 2005 and his book Ética i empresa received the Joan Sardà Dexeus Award in 1998. He has also collaborated on a further 33 books. He is the Director of the Observatory on Ethical, Ecological and Social Investment Funds in Spain; co-founder of Ética, Economía y Dirección (the Spanish branch of the European Business Ethics Network); a member of the international board of Ethical Perspectives and of the Society and Business Review; he is also a member of the board of trustees and on the advisory board of various foundations and associations. He was recognized as a highly commended runner-up in the Faculty Pioneer Award (2003), granted by EABiS and the Aspen Institute (USA).

Eleanor O’Higgins (BA, MSc, MBA, PhD) is on the faculty of the School of Business at University College Dublin. She specializes in teaching, research and publications in social issues in management, including corporate social responsibility, business ethics, corporate governance, and strategic and public management. She is the author of numerous papers in academic and professional journals, newspaper articles, book chapters and case studies. She is a member of the Business Ethics and of the Public Management & Governance interfaculty groups of the Community of European Management Schools (CEMS) and serves on the editorial boards of a number of international management journals. She has received a number of international awards for peer reviewed articles in the social issues in management area. Her case studies and research work on the airline industry and on Ryanair have also received prestigious international awards.

Lars Jacob Tynes Pedersen is Associate Professor at the Department of Accounting, Auditing and Law at NHH Norwegian School of Economics, and Chairman of its Center of Ethics and Economy. He teaches and does research on a variety of topics in business ethics, corporate responsibility and behavioral finance. He has published in journals like the Journal of Business Ethics and Business Ethics: A European Review, and his most recent book is Accounting Ethics (Wiley, 2014).

Peter Pruzan is Professor Emeritus at the Department of Management, Philosophy & Politics, Copenhagen Business School (CBS). He has been the president of an innovative international business and professor at the Technical University of Denmark, the University of Copenhagen and CBS. Recent books include Research Methodology for the Reflective Practitioner of Science (in process), Rational, Ethical and Spiritual Perspectives on Leadership: Selected Writings by Peter Pruzan (2009), and, together with his wife Kirsten, Leading with Wisdom: Spiritual-based Leadership in Business (2007/2010). Among his organizational initiatives are co-founding/designing: AccountAbility in London (1995); CBS’s Center for Corporate Social Responsibility (2002) and the European Academy of Business in Society (2002). He and his wife share their time between a small historical Danish town and a university campus/ashram in southern India.

Donald H. Schepers is Associate Dean for Academic Affairs and Professor of Management at Baruch College, City University of New York. His teaching specialty is Social and Governmental Environment of Business, Corporate Governance, and Business Ethics. His present research interests include corporate governance and codes of conduct, corporate political campaign contributions, socially responsible investing and the impact of nongovernmental organizations on business policy. Recent research has focused more specifically on multi-stakeholder codes of conduct. His articles have appeared in Organizational Behavior and Human Decision Processes, Human Resource Management, Journal of Business Ethics, Business and Society and Business and Society Review, and authored book chapters and case studies as well.

S. Prakash Sethi is University Distinguished Professor at the Zicklin School of Business, Baruch College, at the City University of New York. He has written several books and articles on corporate social accountability and international codes of conduct, and has advised numerous corporations, nongovernmental organizations, and national and international governmental bodies on the conduct of competitive markets and the role of large corporations in economic activities. He is also President of the International Center for Corporate Accountability (ICCA), an independent educational organization affiliated with the Zicklin School of Business.
Contributors

Antonio Tencati is Associate Professor of Management at the Department of Economics and Management, Università degli Studi di Brescia. Between 2005 and 2012 he was Assistant Professor of Management and Corporate Social Responsibility at the Department of Management and Technology, Università Bocconi, with which he continues to collaborate. He is a member of the Steering Committee and a Research Coordinator at CReSV, the Center for Research on Sustainability and Value at Università Bocconi, and a member of the Business Ethics Faculty Group of the CEMS (Community of European Management Schools – The Global Alliance in Management Education). His research areas include business and society, management of sustainability and corporate social responsibility, environmental management, innovation and operations management. His work has been published in leading international journals and academic books.

Laszlo Zsolnai is Professor and Director of the Business Ethics Center at the Corvinus University of Budapest. He is Chairman of the Business Ethics Faculty Group of the CEMS – The Global Alliance in Management Education. He serves as President of the European SPES Institute in Leuven, Belgium. He has been guest professor or visiting scholar at University of Cambridge, University of Oxford, UC Berkeley, Georgetown University, University of Richmond, University of St. Gallen, Bocconi University Milan, and Netherlands Institute for Advanced Study. His website is http://laszlo-zsolnai.net.