Contributors

Peter Van Aelst is Professor in Political Communication at the University of Antwerp, Belgium and a founding member of the research group “Media, Movements and Politics” (www.M2P.be). His research deals with political news, election campaigns, social movements and (new) media, and political agenda setting, among other topics.

Christopher Ansell is Professor of Political Science at the University of California, Berkeley, USA. His fields of interest include governance, public policy, and organization theory and he is the author of Pragmatist Democracy: Evolutionary Learning as Public Philosophy (2011).

Frank R. Baumgartner is the Richard J. Richardson Distinguished Professor of Political Science at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, USA. He studied for all of his academic degrees at the University of Michigan, USA from 1976 to 1986 and lists John Kingdon as one of his prime academic mentors from his undergraduate days to the present. His book with Bryan D. Jones, Agendas and Instability in American Politics (1993), won the Aaron Wildavsky Award for a work of lasting influence from the American Political Science Association Section Public on Public Policy, as did Kingdon’s Agendas, Alternatives, and Public Policy (1995).

Thomas A. Birkland is the William T. Kretzer Professor of Public Policy at North Carolina State University, USA. He is the author of two books, After Disaster (1997) and Lessons of Disaster (2009), as well as the policy textbook An Introduction to the Policy Process (2010) and many articles and book chapters on disasters, focusing events, and agenda setting.

Arjen Boin is Professor of Public Institutions and Governance in the Department of Political Science at Leiden University, the Netherlands.

Paul Cairney is Professor of Politics and Public Policy at the University of Stirling, UK. He blogs on public policy at https://paulcairney.wordpress.com/ and tweets @CairneyPaul. His research interests include comparing theories on evidence and policy (The Politics of Evidence-Based Policymaking, 2016 and Understanding Public Policy, 2012), the use of evidence to promote tobacco control (Global Tobacco Control, 2012 with Laura Chaqués Bonafont is Professor of Political Science at the University of Barcelona, Spain, Research Fellow at the Institut Barcelona d’Estudis Internacionals (IBEI), and Director of the Spanish Policy Agendas Project. In 2014, she won the ICREA academia prize.

Nissim Cohen is a member of the Department of Public Administration and Policy at the University of Haifa, Israel. His research interests include public policy, public administration, the welfare state, social policy, and health policy.

Natalia Dalmer is a doctoral student of Political Science at Leibniz University, Hannover, Germany. Her research interests are in international organizations, the causes and processes of political change, and how such change is influenced by cognitive factors. Her dissertation focuses on the United Nations (UN) and the development of environmental peacebuilding.

Claire A. Dunlop is Associate Professor in Public Policy at the Department of Politics, University of Exeter, UK. Her research interests cover regulation, policy analysis, and the science–policy interface. Most recently she has published research articles in Political Studies, Regulation and Governance, Journal of European Public Policy, Policy Studies, and Policy Sciences. Claire co-edits the journal Public Policy and Administration.

Rebecca Eissler is a Ph.D. student at The University of Texas at Austin, USA. Her research interests included the US presidency, the bureaucracy, and agenda setting.

Roy Gava is Lecturer at the Department of Political Science and International Relations, University of Geneva, Switzerland. His research interests include comparative public policy, financial regulation, and legislative production.

Christoffer Green-Pedersen is Professor of Political Science at Aarhus University, Denmark. His work focuses on party competition, agenda setting, and public policy in comparative perspective.

Alison Harcourt is Professor at the Department of Politics, University of Exeter, UK and specializes in regulatory change in communications markets. She is interested in solutions to regulatory problems based around the citizen/consumer and/or civil society voice. She has written on the regulation of traditional and new media markets at European Union (EU) and international levels.
Jutta Joachim is Professor at the Department of Political Science at Radboud University in Nijmegen, the Netherlands. She received her Ph.D. in Political Science from the University of Wisconsin–Madison, USA and her M.A. in International Studies from the University of South Carolina, USA. She is author of Agenda Setting, the UN, and NGOs: Gender Violence and Reproductive Rights (2007) and co-editor of International Organizations and Implementation: Enforcers, Managers, Authorities (2008) and Transnational Activism in the UN and the EU: A Comparative Study (2009). Articles of her have appeared in International Studies Quarterly, the German Journal for International Relations, Security Dialogue, Millennium, Cambridge Review of International Affairs, Comparative European Politics, and the Journal of European Public Policy.

Bryan D. Jones is the J.J. “Jake” Pickle Regents Chair in Congressional Studies at the Government Department, University of Texas at Austin, USA.

Michael D. Jones is Assistant Professor at Oregon State University’s School of Public Policy, USA. His research focuses on theories of the policy process and the Narrative Policy Framework.

Sanneke Kuipers is a postdoctoral researcher at the Institute of Public Administration Faculty of Governance and Global Affairs, Leiden University, the Netherlands. She is also a senior researcher–advisor at Crisisplan BV, an internationally oriented crisis management consultancy firm.

Stella Ladi is Senior Lecturer in Public Management at Queen Mary University of London, UK. She has been Assistant Professor of Europeanization and Public Policy at Panteion University, Athens, Greece since 2011. She is a member of the Executive Committee of the Greek Politics Specialist Group.

Peter B. Mortensen is Professor of Political Science at Aarhus University, Denmark. His research interests include local and national agenda setting and public budgeting.

Vilém Novotný is Senior Lecturer and Senior Researcher at Charles University in Prague, Czech Republic. His research interests focus on political parties - policy relations, policy process research, and history of policy studies.

Jeffrey S. Peake is Professor of Political Science at Clemson University, South Carolina, USA. His research focuses on presidential leadership, presidential–congressional relations, and US foreign policy. He is co-author of two books, including most recently Breaking Through the Noise: Presidential Leadership, Public Opinion, and the News Media (with Matthew Eshbaugh-Soha, 2011) and his research has appeared in numerous peer-reviewed journals, including the American Political Science Review, Political Communication, Presidential Studies Quarterly, Political Research Quarterly.

Michel Perottino is Associate Professor and Senior Researcher at the Department of Political Science, Faculty of Social Sciences, Charles University, Prague, Czech Republic.

Holly L. Peterson is a Ph.D. student at Oregon State University, USA.

Martin Polášek is Senior Lecturer and Senior Researcher at the Department of Political Science, Faculty of Social Sciences, Charles University, Prague, Czech Republic.

Sebastiaan Princen is Professor of Governance and Policymaking in the European Union at Utrecht University, the Netherlands. His research focuses on agenda setting, policymaking and cross-border cooperation in the EU.

David A. Rochefort is Arts and Sciences Distinguished Professor of Political Science and Public Policy and Urban Affairs at Northeastern University, USA. His teaching and writing focus on the areas of policy analysis, political language, and health and social welfare.

Annelise Russell is a Ph.D. candidate at The University of Texas at Austin, USA. Her research interests include legislative studies of agenda setting and media behavior.

Paul Rutledge is Associate Professor in the Department of Political Science at the University of West Georgia, Carrollton, USA. He earned his Ph.D. from West Virginia University, USA in 2009, and has taught at the University of West Georgia since. He resides in Villa Rica, Georgia with his wife Amy and four children. In addition, he serves as the Director of the Recreation Soccer Program for the Villa Rica Soccer Association.

Sabine Saurugger is Professor of Political Science at Sciences Po Grenoble, France and Senior Research Fellow at Politiques publiques, ACTion politique, TErritoires (PACTE). She currently works on the politics of law in the EU and domestic administrative resistances to European integration. Recent publications include Theoretical Approaches to European Integration (2013) and journal articles in European Journal of Political Research, West European Politics, Comparative European Politics, Journal of European Public Policy, Journal of Common Market Studies, and Policy Sciences.
Stefaan Walgrave is Professor in Political Science at the University of Antwerp, Belgium and head of the research group “Media, Movements and Politics.” His research deals with the communication triangle between media, citizens, and political elites. He is currently holder of an European Research Council (ERC) advanced grant on how politicians deal with information.

Nikolaos Zahariadis is the Mertie Buckman Professor of International Studies at Rhodes College, USA. He has published widely on issues of comparative public policy and European political economy.

Philippe Zittoun is Research Professor of Political Science and Public Policy at LAET–ENTPE, University of Lyon, France and the General Secretary of the International Public Policy Association. His latest book on public policy is The Political Process of Policy-Making (2014, in French and English). He will co-edit with B. Guy Peters Contemporary Approaches to Public Policy (2016), and with Charlotte Halpern and Patrick Hassenteufel the book Policy Analysis in France (forthcoming). His research focuses on the roles of knowledge, discourses, and actors’ power over the policy process and is supported by important empirical studies on policies including housing, transport, shale gas, and the environment. He is also an editorial board member of academic journals including Journal of Policy Studies, Journal of Comparative Policy Analysis, Critical Policy Studies, and others.