
Acknowledgements

As members of the research group Geographies of Globalizations (GoG) of the Amsterdam Institute for Social Science Research (AISSR) of the University of Amsterdam (UvA), we have been looking at different spatial manifestations of processes of globalization for quite some time. We were already very much aware that we only covered a small and selective set of issues related to this near-ubiquitous phenomenon. The contributions to this Handbook have only strengthened our sense of modesty as they present a rich panorama of the many different ways in which globalization is articulated. A project all the more important in times where the globalization as natural phenomenon discourse (hegemonic since Mrs Thatcher's 'There-is-no-alternative' in the 1980s) has suddenly been replaced by renationalization rhetoric in many regions of the world.

We would first like to express our deep appreciation to all the contributors to this Handbook for sharing with us their expertise on globalization processes, and for contributing to this collection. Thanks to them, the chapters cover a wide range of topics, approaches and insights related to geographies of globalization.

We thank all who have contributed one way or the other to the making of the Handbook, especially our colleagues at GoG for their comments on our early plans for this volume, the team at Edward Elgar for their support and patience, and Joanna van der Leun for the design of the cover.

Finally, we are particularly grateful to Rosa Koetsenruijter who was responsible for much of the communication with the authors as well as assisting us with the editing of the chapters and, moreover, has done a great job in keeping us on track for the completion of this Handbook.

Robert C. Kloosterman
Virginie Mamadouh
Pieter Terhorst

Department of Geography, Planning and International Development Studies
Amsterdam Institute for Social Science Studies (AISSR)
Centre for Urban Studies (CUS)
University of Amsterdam
Amsterdam, the Netherlands

