This book is a result of the four-year research effort by a multi-cultural research team from six different countries. Supported by the funding received from Norwegian Research Council, project number 247716/O70 ‘Digitalize or Die – Dynamic Drivers of Responsible Research and Innovation in Health and Welfare services’, this work has truly influenced our lives. From being curious researchers we’ve moved to become engaged agents of change of the new phenomena we observed during this research. We are grateful for all contributors to this work, including our authors and informants. It would not be possible to write this book without inputs from entrepreneurs, patients, caregivers, healthcare professionals, researchers and policymakers, municipality and cluster representatives, innovation agents in healthcare sector that shared their stories and viewpoints with us. There are too many to mention by name but we’re really grateful to all of them.

Special thanks are due to the team at Edward Elgar Publishing for their support during the writing and publication process.
